

Ennead Profile Series 6: Natural History Museum of Utah

Setting a new standard for a Natural History Museum of the twenty-first century, the facility blends seamlessly into the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, the angles of the roof rising and falling with the slope of the foothills in the background. The design reflects the Museum's mission to illuminate the natural world through scientific inquiry, educational outreach, mutual cultural experience, and human engagement of the past, present, and future of the region and the world.
