

Sea of Land: The Polder as an Experimental Atlas of Dutch Landscape

Authoritative and richly illustrated publication describing the history, design and development of the most famous Dutch land reclamation projects, and their relationship to one another. For the first time the polder landscape is explained architecturally, as a specific challenging form of Dutch spatial art. Alongside exploratory texts, the edition contains unique prints, maps and paintings, aerial photographs, analytical and design drawings, and a glossary of Dutch water management terminology.
