

Young Architects 5: Inhabiting Identity

Inhabiting Identity is the fifth in an annual series of publications featuring the best young architects as selected by The Architectural League of New York. For this years competition, architects were asked to explore how technology has altered our sense of space. Their answers not only challenge our sense of habitation but teach us to think beyond the normal and mundane. This years winners of the competition-- Stephanie Forsythe and Todd MacAllen, Steven Mankouche, Ben Checkwitch, Stella Betts, Lisa Hsieh, and Mike Latham-- make use of unusual materials (wooden shopping pallets) while maintaining creative ideas (mobile rooms) in their investigations of the role of modern technology in our daily lives.
